ECG-QP 101 Quality Policy

ECG will provide products, which conform to the contractual requirement of its' customers and all applicable regulatory authorities.

ECG will meet its objectives. ECG has established and maintains an effective Management System in accordance with ECG Requirements and those of their customers.

Conformity of systems based on customers' site requirements and objectives.

ECG ensures that all personnel are conversant with the company's strategy, goals and objectives.

To ensure continued effectiveness of the quality system and to promote a uniform approach to quality and maintain procedures which are set out by ECG.

All personnel throughout management are responsible for the integration of quality requirements into their normal work procedures and for ensuring that such procedures are documented.

A review of the quality systems by the Managing Director is aimed at determining if the policy and operating philosophy is still valid and that changing customer requirements are reflected in the company operations.

The formal auditing process is designated to detect whether the procedures, work instructions, etc, are implemented, absent or whether other aspects of the Quality System require correction or modification.

Fundamental to all work performed by ECG is the assurance of product quality prior to delivery to the customer. In this sense, all products will be suitable for their intended purpose and be in compliance with agreed specifications, standards or contractual requirements.
